E-Safety Children's online activities, risks and safety [a literature review]

The recent time trends in children's internet use are as follow is increasing internet use among very young children.

- ☐ An increasing amount of time is spent per week by internet users.
- ☐ There has been a shift from shared to personal devices for internet use (although younger children prefer use of the tablet).
- ☐ UK children are more likely to use the tablet than children in other European countries; they are also more likely to use the internet at school.
- ☐ Age is the major factor that differentiates among children in terms of amount and context of internet use.
- ☐ Gender matters more to patterns and preferences in internet use rather than to access.
- ☐ Despite increasing access and use among children, socio-demographic inequalities persist.
